Two former big league stars were signed by the Media Delaware County League club, according to Manager William C. Alexander. They are Catcher Smith and Shortstop Ed Holly. Smith at one time caught for the Athletics before he jumped to the Pittsburgh Pirates and later managed the Newark International League club. He was released a few days ago by Newark. Holly played with St. Louis Nationals, spent several years in the Tristate, and until recently was a member of the Pittsburgh Federals.

maintains he is a novice.

It has been the privilege of the reporter to know Moran for a number of years, and he has no hesitancy in cornering him in the clubhouse dressing room. Pat anticipated the errand, which was to get his ideas of successful big league management, and started to talk nervously about the weather.

"I knew it was coming," murmured Moran, with a complete the scale of action, and in just two minutes he had every man busy on the field, the 'movie' men had secured their pictures and Pat had resumed his talking. The florid-faced boss of the Phillies is a hustler of the first degree—he works hard all the time himself and he has the faculty of making those around him move at full speed.

"I knew it was coming," murmured Moran, with an air of resignation.

"Successful big league management is one thing I don't want to discuss. I'm a novice at this sort of thing—simply a novice."

It was a remarkable reply. Here was a man with a long and honorable gareer as a base ball player and coach behind him—a man grown gray in the game—a veteran of world champion teams and the leader of a club recognized as a pennant contender, pleading inexperience. Verily, it is a modest inexperience. Verily, it is a modest man who controls the destinies of the Phillies.

"There isn't much to be said about my scheme of management," continued Pat. "We are just going along, paying attention to our business, just the same as men in any other walk of life the boys to wait as long as Doubtless if you elect to dignify four such ridiculous looking questions with answers you will say, "No! No! No! No! No!" vehemently and contemptuously. You are wrong—Pat Moran says so, and Pat, as an interested party, should know what he is talking about.

We both have jobs. Theirs is to go out there and play ball: mine is to think out the situations as they arise and meet them. They are not the kind of players who try to manage my team for me."

Bill Donovan has pretty well proved Bill Donovan has pretty well proved his worth as a big league manager. He has done better with the New Yorks than most persons imagined that he would do, for the regular team is very little changed in make-up from the team of last season, and he has gradually gone about building his fences for next year.

The American Association experts agree that Pete Johns, the Cleveland boy who is infielding for the Columbus Senators, is sure to go to the big leagues at the end of the present season. Johns is playing the greatest ball of his career. After three years he seems to have struck his stride.

This young George Sisler of the Browns is one of the most remarkable athletes that have broken into the big leagues in a decade, being apparently equally proficient in the outfield, infield and pitcher's box. The Boston National League club has Strenuous efforts are being made by the business men of Miami, Fla., to get a big league base ball club to go there and train next spring. Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis have been sounded, and there is a good chance that one of them will give the farsouth resort a trial in 1916. The hotel association has offered to put up a guarantee of $3,500 to bring a club to the city, and in order to get this money back, will ask the large leaguers to play a series of exhibition games with other clubs to be brought into Miami from nearby training camps.

George Burns, the Tigers' first baseman. is getting quite a reputation as a home-run hitter. In the last ten days he has hit three balls over the left field wall on the Detroit grounds, and it requires quite a drive to accomplish this. Burns is showing himself to be a much better first baseman than he was heretofore. He seems to have picked up in both fielding and hitting, and is now of real value to the team.

Jennings seems to have picked up a mighty handy player in "Pep" Young, who has succeeded Kavanaugh at second. Young is a clever fielder, and anything but a weakling with the bat. He and Bush make a cracking good pair around the keystone sack.

Hughey Jennings does not figure on either the White Sox or the Bostons winning this year's flag. He believes his team stands the better chance, and predicts this will come to pass because his pitchers will show to better advantage as the season progresses. The Tigers' leader cannot see either the Boston or the Chicago pitching staff, and he is very doubtful as to the Chicago team's ability to stand the gaff when the strain becomes great. He is well satisfied with his own charges, and believes he is well fortified for almost any emergency.
